Objects loaned to the Eagle Gallery will be given the same care, handling, and supervision that the gallery gives comparable property of its own. The Gallery will insure this loan under its fine arts policy for the dates given above for the amounts stated on the Exhibition Inventory Form, which shall not exceed fair market value. The student lender agrees to leave the objects listed on that form for the period given above, unless other arrangements are stated under Special Conditions on this form. The student lender also agrees to allow the objects loaned to be photographed for non-commercial purposes. This agreement does not take effect until it has been signed by the student lender, the gallery director, and the student's area advisor (BFA candidates) or the art department faculty under whom the student has had the greatest concentration of work as represented in this exhibition (BA & BS candidates). Murray State University does not assume any responsibility for any loaned objects not reclaimed within seven days of the closing dates listed above; such objects will be disposed of at the discretion of the gallery director.
