Mix and Mingle through Research

January 22, 2015 – 6 p.m.
Tennessee Room, Curris Center

The goal of the Diversity Scholars Research Club, organized through the Office of Undergraduate Research and Scholarly Activity, is to support undergraduate minority and underrepresented students interested in academic research.

We aim to do this by providing space to discuss research opportunities, creating mechanisms for students to connect with each other, and coordinating seminars on topics determined by attendees (i.e. student communication with professors regarding project involvement). The Diversity Scholars Research Club also provides a social community for undergraduate student researchers recognizing there are many challenges and cultural norms that need to be learned outside of the research environment.

CONTACT INFORMATION

Chesika Crump, Student Facilitator
ccrump1@murraystate.edu

Jody Cofer Randall, URSA Program Coordinator
jcofer@murraystate.edu

Equal education and employment opportunities M/F/D, AA employer